Answers

Task 1: Why does Seaton say that learning new things is important as an Automotive Service Technician?

Because it's a constantly evolving trade. There are always things being added to cars, or new problems they're having.

Task 2: What is one thing Seaton does in the shop that isn't related to fixing cars? Possible answers:

- Greet customers
- Talking to customers / customer relations
- Taking down customer concerns
- Discussing or addressing the customer's concerns
- Making up an estimate
- Explaining what needs to be done and estimating how much it will cost.
- Accounting or math.

Task 3: Provide an example of something an Automotive Service Technician does that won't "get their hands dirty"?

Electrical diagnostics. Looking at a screen and testing different sensors.
